PUBLIC LECTURES BEGIN IN JANUARY

William Lyon Phelps and President Vincent Will Come to Richmond College.

President Boardman announces an attractive program of public lectures to be delivered in the auditorium of Richmond College early during the coming year. The list of speakers includes, besides four members of the faculty, Professor William Lyon Phelps, of Yale University, who will talk on "American Literature," and President George R. Vincent, of the University of Minnesota, who will take for his subject "Studies in Social Psychology."

The dates for the appearance of Professor Phelps and President Vincent are not fixed, but it is known that they will come during the months of March or April, after the completion of the faculty lectures. The four addresses by local professors will be given as follows:

- January 11—Professor Walter A. Montgomery, "Men and Matters in Rome as Seen by Juvenal."
- January 14—Professor J. C. Metcalf, "Tolstoy."
- January 21—Professor Eugene C. Rugham, "Recent Developments in Industrial Chemistry."
- January 28—Professor R. A. Stewart, "L'Esprit Gaulois."

President Vincent will give a series of three lectures dealing with the general subject of social psychology. Their individual subjects will be "The Man and the Group," "Freedom and Responsibility," and "The Larger Self." Professor Phelps will probably divide American literature into three periods, treating one in each lecture. His reputation as a writer and teacher is such as to insure a ready audience for his three lectures here.

All of the speakers from the faculty of Richmond College are well recognized authorities in their respective fields. Professor Montgomery in the classics, Professor Metcalf in literature, Professor Rugham in science and Professor Stewart in Romance languages.

AUTO LICENSES SHOW BIG GAIN

Increase of 43 Per Cent in Virginia in 1912 Over Total for 1911.

A grand total of 5,760 automobile licenses was the total in Virginia for 1912. The growth of use of the machine in this State is shown instantly when this figure is compared with that of 1911, when the total was 4,014.

No more licenses will be issued this year from the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Purchases of the Commonwealth's license for the remainder of the year, or if they had not, the number may be transferred for temporary use.

The issuance of 1913 licenses will be begun about Christmas Day, and these will be good on machines during the last few days of the old year.

The 1912 number plates, following the custom, differ greatly in appearance from those that have gone before. The plates for 1912, the first year under the new law, were white and red, the former color being the more prominent. In these for 1913 the blue predominated, while for 1912 green was the principal thing seen about them.

Parties desiring to hold their present numbers for next year had best apply early.

DINNER FOR VETERANS

Richmond Chapter, U. D. C., Will Honor Men at Lee Camp Home.

The Richmond Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at a meeting yesterday morning, decided on December 12 as the date for the Christmas dinner to be given at the Lee Camp Soldiers' Home. Mrs. B. A. Bennett was named as chairman of a committee to make arrangements for the dinner, and the names of those to serve with her at a table were announced.

The chapter voted to endorse the movement for a city appropriation for playgrounds. A committee representing the organization recently appeared, in company with those from other lodges, before the Council of the city, and secured the appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose.

On January 15, the birthday of General Lee, the chapter will unite with the members of Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans, in a social service in honor of the great Southern leader.

The following new members were elected: Mrs. J. M. Moore, Miss Julia Grant Moore, and Miss Mary Grant Moore, for life; and Mrs. William H. Smith, Mrs. George W. Smith, and Miss Julia Anderson, as annual members.

LEVY WON'T PART WITH MONTICELLO

Refuses Offer of Three-Quarters of Million for Home of Jefferson.

GIVES PATRIOTIC REASON

In Telegram to Governor Mann He Declines to Commercialize Sentiment.

Declining "to commercialize the sentiment of years by putting a price upon this noble property," Jefferson M. Levy, in a telegram yesterday to Governor Mann, puts an end to the present to the negotiations for the purchase of Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson. The refusal is in reply to a message from the Governor, intended to open negotiations for the purchase of the property.

The offer came from Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, who, for a Virginian whose name was withheld, offered to buy Monticello for four times its assessed value, the title to be in the name of the Commonwealth of Virginia, and to be held in trust for all the people. It has been understood that the donor is Thomas F. Ryan, of Virginia and New York.

Refuses Enormous Sum.
This magnificent gift to the people of Virginia will not be realized. It is evident that Mr. Levy does not regard the proposition from a mercenary standpoint, when it is remembered that he puts the sum of $750,000 away from him by his declination to make or consider a price.

Mr. Levy gives his patriotic feeling and his affection for the property as the reason for his refusal to consider an offer of purchase. "I am not prepared to make or accept," he says, "any offer depriving me of this cherished right."

In his telegram to the owner of Monticello, Governor Mann thanked Mr. Levy for the magnificent care he has always given to the property, for the time and money he has expended on it, and for the courtesy he has displayed in admitting visitors to the shrine of democracy. He then inquired if Mr. Levy's patriotism permitted him to consider selling the place, to be for the perpetual use of the public.

Mr. Levy's Response.
The reply is as follows:
Washington, December 11, 1912.
Governor William Hodges Mann, Richmond, Va.

I am grateful to receive through you the expressions of appreciation from the great State of Virginia. It is with much pleasure that I note this commendation of my custody of Monticello and my efforts to preserve it intact as a great shrine, fully accessible to all worthy persons. I am sure that the good people of your Commonwealth will also recognize that, unaided by other States or the nation, this has been satisfactorily accomplished, and that as a labor of love, in honor of the memory of the great statesman who once dwelt there, I have lavished my deepest affection, not to mention much time and large sums of money. It also affords me much pleasure to know that the people of your State, in common with other great States of the country, are now so keenly interested in what has been the source of unmitigated zeal for several generations in my family, as we have never considered cost in giving expression to our love for "Monticello" and for Thomas Jefferson.

I cannot now commercialize the sentiment of years by putting a price upon this noble property. With my highest conception of patriotic feeling toward the name and home of Thomas Jefferson, in which I yield first place to no one, coupled with a deep affection for the place itself because of long association, and in the full realization that my care will continue to be held abundant and constant, I am not prepared to make or accept any offer depriving me of this cherished right.

(Signed) JEFFERSON M. LEVY.

SHOOTS AT POLICEMAN

Unknown Negro Fires One Shot at County Officer.

An unknown negro who has been noticed lurking around the County Jail at 11th and Main streets, for several days, took a shot at County Policeman Randall about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Immediately after shooting the frightened man of the jailhouse in his efforts to evade the officers. In the fall he managed to lose his pistol.

The weapon, a small twenty-two-caliber pistol, furnished the only clue to the identification of the person who had been seen lurking around the jailhouse. A number of persons including Night Watchman Perkins at the County Jail, it is said, had been visited by the man, and he had been seen following the negro to three or four places on the night when the shooting occurred.

Postpone Reception.

The reception planned by the alumni of the Women's College to honor the speaker, the affair was to have been given to-morrow evening at the home of Row 8. It is now postponed until a later date, as the time of Mr. Templeman has made it necessary to defer further arrangements.

Suit Is Dismissed.

The suit of the Brown Coal Company against the Atlantic States Coal and Coke Company was dismissed yesterday from the docket of the City Circuit Court on motion of attorneys for the plaintiff.

Have Served What Is Now Minimum Sentence—Refuses Clemency to Murderer.

Two pardons were granted yesterday by Governor Mann in cases of forgery. In view of the action of the last Legislature in reducing the minimum penalty. Both men were given two years in the State Penitentiary, their offenses being trivial. Involving small amounts. The Legislature has since made the minimum penalty one year. One of the fortunate men is Alexander Green, of Prince Edward County, and the other is George McCarter, of Fredericksburg. They have each served the one year now prescribed by law, and were released yesterday, the pardons being conditional and revocable for future offenses.

The Governor refused to pardon William Saragatz, of Prince George County, who is serving a term of fifteen years in State prison for murder in the second degree. Saragatz has been in the penitentiary since 1904. A good many women took his case up and asked the executive for mercy. He could not see his way clear to interfere, especially since the prosecuting attorney and others advised against commutation.

In the cases of the forgers, court officials induced the applications for pardons.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY REPORTS

After Adding $5,000,000 to City Tax Lists, Reports 1,000 Offenders Extant.

INVESTIGATION WILL GO ON

Same Jury to Be Drawn Again in January to Complete Work.

At the end of three months of arduous labor and investigation, the special grand jury of the Hustings Court, drawn to inquire into tax returns, submitted a third supplemental report yesterday afternoon to Judge D. C. Richardson, in which it was reported that over and above the hundreds who have come forward and rectified their taxable properties, there are still more than 1,000 corporations, firms, partnerships and individuals in the city of Richmond who have failed to give in for taxation the actual value of their property.

Since the special grand jury began its unprecedented search into the hidden vaults of corporations and individual taxpayers three months ago, more than $5,000,000 of taxable property has been added to the city's tax lists by taxpayers who were originally guilty of undervaluation of their holdings. This means an increase in the city's revenue of approximately $20,000, while the State receives benefit to the extent of $15,000.

To Sit Again.
In order that the investigation into the tax returns may be made as thorough and searching as possible, the report recommended that the special grand jury, which was formally adjourned yesterday afternoon, be drawn again for the January term of the court and charged with the same duties.

Judge Richardson will immediately issue orders for the continuation of this investigating body. The prospect is that the grand jury will be occupied with its examination through the entire month of January.

So far the grand jury to the present time that all tax-dodgers summoned to appear before it have cheerfully fattened their tax return rather than face the indictment which was threatened. The grand jury in its report stated that of the 1,000 tax-dodgers still guilty of undervaluation of their holdings, the grand jury will be charged with the duty to correct their entries. If any in the list refuse to make the corrections desired after having been summoned before the grand jury, indictments will be immediately drawn.

Report of Jury.

The verdict report of the grand jury follows:
To the Hon. D. C. Richardson, Judge of the Hustings Court of the City of Richmond, Va.:
We, the undersigned, special grand jury, which has been in session for some months revising the tax lists, beg to make this third supplemental report to the honorable court:

After the examination of the tax lists, we must report that there are over 1,000 corporations, firms, partnerships and individuals who have failed to give in sufficient capital, purchases, incomes and personal properties (such as stocks and bonds). These have not mentioned parties, we think, as well as all others, should be given until the January term of the court to revise and correct their entries to the commissioner of revenue. The unfinished work of this jury must be completed, and we therefore suggest that the jury be charged with the duty to correct their entries. If any in the list refuse to make the corrections desired after having been summoned before the grand jury, indictments will be immediately drawn.

Mr. Phillips Leaves.

John Phillips, of London, who spent several weeks in this city as the representative of the English financial interests, left yesterday for Montreal, from which point he will sail for Liverpool next week. Mr. Phillips, while in Richmond, assisted in the organization of the Anglo-American Finance Corporation, which colored people of Richmond will inaugurate of January 1 next.

Suit Is Dismissed.

The suit of the Brown Coal Company against the Atlantic States Coal and Coke Company was dismissed yesterday from the docket of the City Circuit Court on motion of attorneys for the plaintiff.

BOY AND GIRL AT POINT OF DEATH

Left Alone in Flat in Play Turn On Gas in Stove.

JACOBINI THE HERO

Rushes Doctors to Children, Who Sing Song in His Honor.

Only the lucky appearance of Mrs. Dora Goldberg and the presence of mind of Patrolman C. Jacobini, of the Second Station, saved the lives of two black-haired, black-eyed tots from sunny Italy—Hugo and Violet Subreizi—who were rapidly succumbing to the fumes from a gas range, which the little girl had inadvertently turned on, yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of their home on the third floor of the house at 400 West Broad Street.

Yesterday at noon their father, Ercole Subreizi, who is employed in a ladies' tailoring shop at 408 East Grace Street, and mother went out on their regular business, leaving the two little children, three and eight years old, locked securely out of harm's way in their flat. The two older children were away at school. Tiring of the ordinary methods of amusements, Violet suddenly hit upon the idea of going into the kitchen and cooking some sweet potatoes.

Caught in Trap.

So the pair trotted off to the kitchen for play. Unfortunately, the kitchen door had a spring lock, and when it was closed by the wind, made fast prisoners of the two children. Without noticing that they were locked in, little Violet turned on the gas in the range.

When the pair were found, Maria Subreizi had placed them carefully out of reach. Never thinking that the spurring jets of gas could bring them harm, Hugo and Violet continued to dispute themselves about the kitchen until they began to feel a creeping drowsiness and suffocation. It was too late then. Before they could drag themselves to the locked door the fumes of the deadly gas had mounted to the brain and produced unconsciousness. By the merest chance in the world the transom over the kitchen door was open, and through this a faint breeze partially dissipated the gaseous fumes. This fact undoubtedly saved the children's lives until the arrival of help.

Returning from school about 4:30 o'clock, Cesira Subreizi, the pretty little girl who is the oldest of the children, found the outside door of the flat locked and became alarmed. She knocked and returned with her neighbor, Mrs. Dora Goldberg, and the two threw their weight against the door. In their desperation they burst the catch. Once inside the flat the gas pouring from the kitchen led them to the death door, and they snatched their way through another door.

At Point of Death.

Flat upon the floor were found the two little children, entirely unconscious and at the point of death. A big white cat, the pet of the little children, staggered out of the kitchen while Mrs. Goldberg and Cesira were dragging Hugo and Violet to the fresh air. By this time the neighbors had sensed some excitement and gathered about the doorway on Monroe Street.

While the frantic Cesira and Mrs. Goldberg were laboring to restore the two children, Policeman Jacobini happened to pass on Monroe Street on a broad street car, noticed the crowd and jumped off. He took in the gravity of the situation at a glance and, without a moment's delay, he rushed to the automobile, sprang in and ordered the chauffeur to drive to the nearest doctor. Dr. W. A. Shepherd and Dr. R. M. Rosebro, living just around the corner on Grace Street, were found at home and whirled to the scene in time to administer restoratives and draw the children back to life.

Last night, smiling but pale, Hugo and Violet sat in their parents' arms before the fire in their flat, and when visited by a reporter for the Times-Dispatch were singing a song to their hero, Jacobini.

JENKINS FINED FOR STREET ROW

Brother of Street Railway Official Must Pay $50 for Hitting Leaman.

Punishment was dealt out to Robert L. Jenkins, brother of W. L. Jenkins, vice-President of the Richmond and Henric Railway, yesterday by Justice Crutchfield in Police Court for his unprovoked assault on W. P. Leaman Tuesday morning at Ninth and Main streets. Jenkins was fined $50 and costs, and required to furnish $300 bond for twelve months, at the close of a two-hours' hearing. The decision will be appealed by the defendant.

The fight which caused the scene in the court room had its origin in the recent contest for a light and power franchise by the Richmond and Henric Railway before the City Council. According to the testimony offered yesterday, Jenkins was sent by his brother to Leaman's bar in the Mutual Building to secure from Leaman a petition addressed by the voters of Madison Ward to his representatives in the Council in regard to the street railway franchise.

After a number of ineffectual calls in the bar, Jenkins ran across Leaman Tuesday morning on Ninth Street, just outside the Mutual Building. Jenkins approached the saloonkeeper and demanded the petition, and Leaman denied having it.

"If you don't give it to me I'll smash your d-d face," Jenkins is quoted by witnesses as saying. When Leaman retorted, "You won't do anything of the kind," Jenkins struck him under the eye. Before the fight could proceed further bystanders, among whom was Detective Frank I. Gentry, intervened, and the assailant was put under arrest.

In the effort to win the case, neither party to the trouble spared expense for lawyers. Harry M. Smith, Jr., represented Leaman, while W. Kirk Matthews and Samuel L. Kelley, counsel for the Richmond and Henric Railway, appeared in the latter's defense. The case attracted one of the largest crowds that the Police Court has seen for many a day, and the small room was packed to suffocation.

Although only five witnesses were introduced, the hearing consumed more than two hours. To substantiate his claim that the assault was unprovoked, Leaman produced three witnesses besides himself—Edward J. O'Donnell, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Charles Angel, an employee of Leaman, and Detective Frank I. Gentry. Mr. Jenkins himself was the only witness called by the defense.

It is understood from statements made by Leaman after the trial that he will immediately bring suit for $5,000 damages against the Richmond and Henric Railway Company. The suit will be filed in the City Circuit Court. Leaman's claim is that the railway company is liable for the assault, because Jenkins was acting as an employee of the Richmond and Henric Railway at the time of the trouble.

Car Line for Fulton Hill.

A subcommittee of the Council Committee on Streets yesterday afternoon, after some debate, decided to order the two street car companies for track extension. With the City Engineer the subcommittee has agreed to have the tracks extended to be used by the Richmond and Henric Railway Company in its East End extension, promised to be operated up Fulton Hill, out to the National Cemetery. Some shifting of the tracks in Fulton is also proposed. The matter will be considered at the next meeting of the Committee on Streets.

SOUTH SUBURBS FOR ANNEXATION

Trans-James Settlements to Hold Joint Mass-Meeting to Talk It Over.

Residents of Woodland Heights, Southside Forest Hill and adjacent settlements will gather in joint mass meeting at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening for the purpose of putting into definite shape a general plan for the annexation of this territory by the city of Richmond. The meeting will be held at a centrally situated church near Forest Hill.

President T. P. Bryan, of the Business Men's Club, who is also chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee on annexation, and Business Manager Dabney, secretary of the same committee, have been invited by the suburbanites to make addresses. The latter particularly has been active in the project of annexing convenient suburban areas for development as home sites for workmen, and will offer an outline of the chamber's plans in this direction.

Follows Campaign Plan.

The meeting follows the campaign lines marked out by the Chamber of Commerce some time ago. It is part of a plan to awaken the suburban settlements to the benefits of incorporation as an integral part of the city, so that the communities may protect their wishes in a tangible form to the City Council. At the Southside meeting Tuesday night a number of residents will make short addresses.

The general annexation problem will come up for discussion at the board of directors' meeting at the Chamber of Commerce at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Plans will also be considered for an entertainment, probably a dinner, which it is proposed to tender the traveling salesmen of this city who will be home for the holidays.

Applications for membership, the aftermath of the recent campaign, will continue to come in. The board of directors will this afternoon pass upon a number of these that have been filed since the last meeting.

Since the last meeting.
